

The 10 region in the Philippines with most confirmed cases

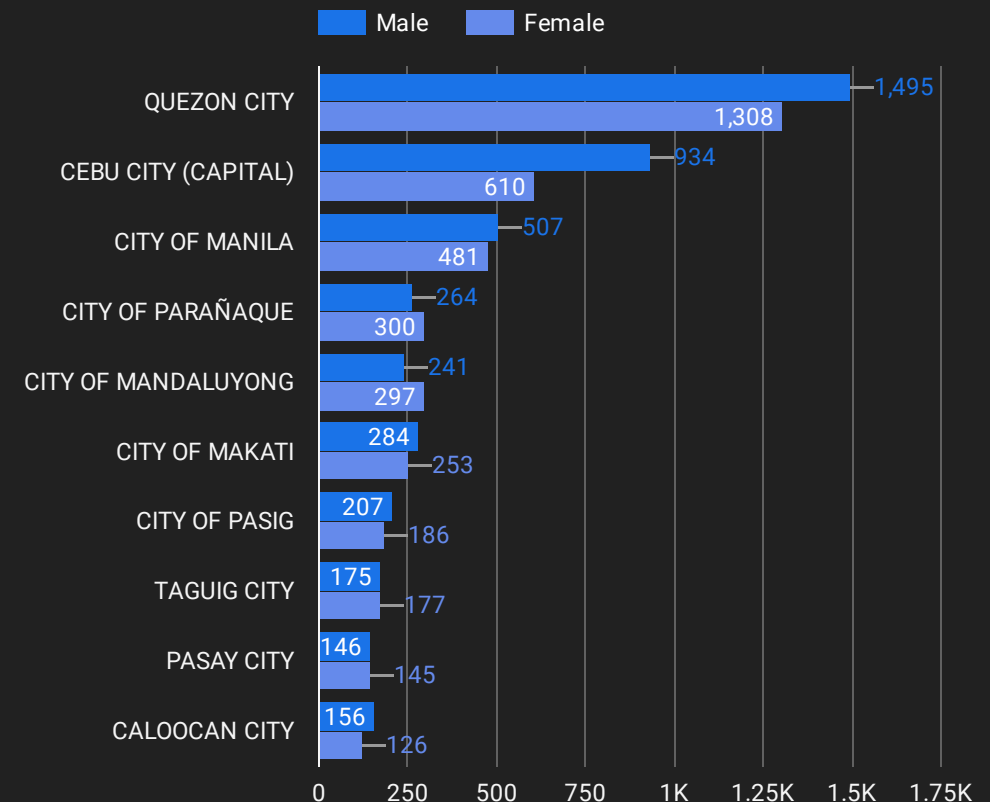

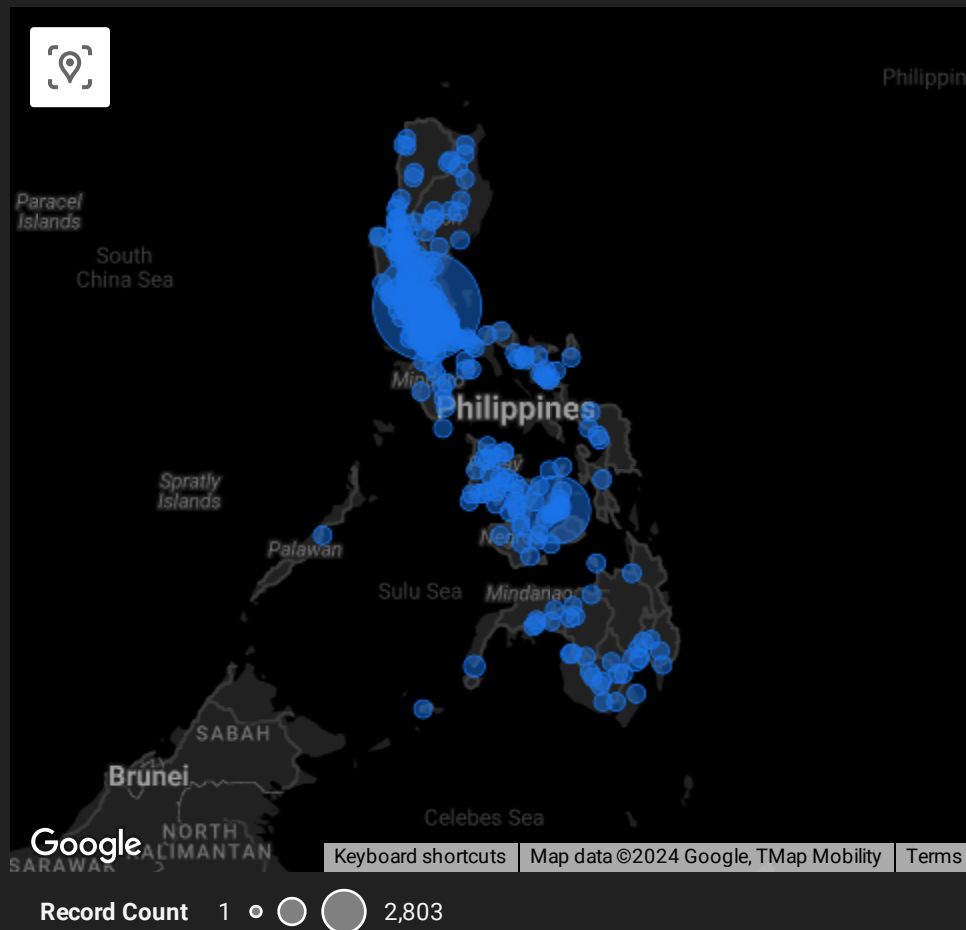

Record Count
12,091

The NCR has the highest number of confirmed Covid-19 cases, accounting for 64.7% of the overall total. This means that in the NCR region, there are 7,825 people infected with Covid-19.

One of the busiest cities in the Philippines is Quezon City. Also, due to its high population, it became the top city for COVID-19 cases in the National Capital Region (NCR).

There have been 2803 recorded COVID-19 cases in Quezon City, with the majority of cases consisting of males, around 1495 recorded male cases.

The majority of COVID-19 cases are mild and one of the highest recorded regions is the National Capital Region (NCR), with Quezon City being one of the areas within the NCR with the highest number of cases of it.

The COVID-19 status in every municipality shows that Quezon City has the highest number of mild cases. However, it also holds the record for the highest number of severe cases.

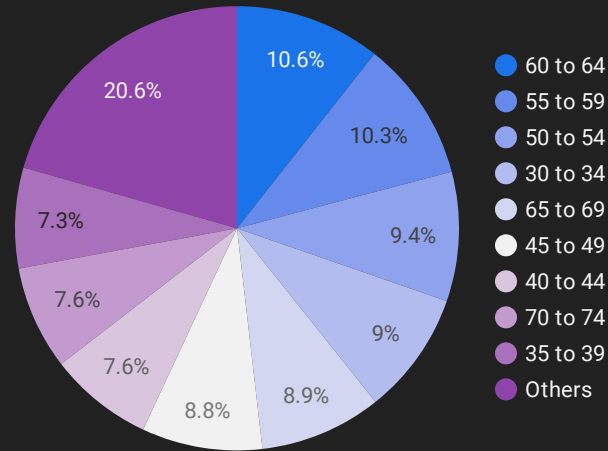

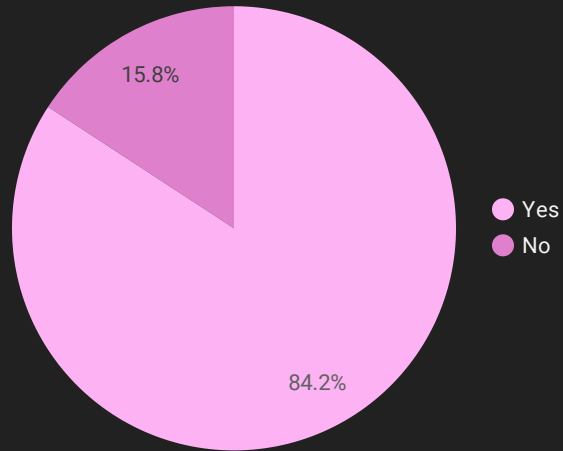

We see here the percentage of people in Quezon City who quarantined, but due to the highly infectious nature of COVID-19, it managed to infect even those who were in quarantine.

Within the NCR, Quezon City, being one of the most populated cities, made a significant impact on most Filipinos, as many businesses and key areas are located within its vicinity.

Despite quarantine measures in Quezon City, it's nearly unavoidable to remain unaffected by COVID-19 due to its high infectiousness and multiple waves.

Most of the seniors and adults are the ones primarily affected by COVID-19, as it targets the immune system, which tends to weaken with age, making older individuals more vulnerable and prone to the virus.

With Quezon City being one of the busiest city and workplaces in the Philippines, it significantly contributed to the surge of COVID-19 cases. Consequently, Quezon City emerged as the most infected city in the National Capital Region (NCR).

SAFETY FIRST

Therefore, it's important that we avoid busy areas or crowded places during the time of COVID-19, such as Quezon City. If we live in that area, we must minimize our outings. The bustling nature of these places not only attracts more people but also increases the risk of infection for everyone in the vicinity.

Be safe and wear a mask to reduce the risk of infection when you need to go outside.
